

We still surviving, striving,
scribing, and shriving!

FREELY COPY AND DISTRIBUTE!

The next issue will have a message from Inquisitor Draxis! More exposition on Gwylry and 23rd's Mutiny.

THE PRINCE LIVES & SEC COM'S BLOODIED NOSE!

Whether you agree with Ollin Cranx's politics or not, you have to agree, at least if you're reading this paper in earnest, that his continued existence and resistance is a thorn in the side of the Regent and his bulge-headed cronies. As you may have figured it out, that "official report" printed in the pages of that mining-boot licking rag, No Veritas, is a pack of Kroot droppings. The fight at Sec A2 D-4 wasn't a one-sided affair. Cranx's boys put up a huge fight. If it was as one-sided as they claimed, then why did the raid last 3 S'rol? Even No Veritas reported it was that long. Body count reported of the brave Anti-Regency Fighters were also inflated. We have it from sources that some if not most were just poor bystanders or indigents caught in the zone that the SecCom forces gunned down. Where's the actual bodies of the ARF they claimed to have killed? If it were true, they would be splashing the tagged bodies of all 57 they murdered on the pict-feed every half S'ro. Also, our sources cite direct information from the medicae network that SecCom had over three score casualties, with at least 40 dead. More importantly, Cranx lives on, and even the bulge-heads couldn't cover that up. We're all rooting for the Prince, or at least for him to keep hitting the Regent and his bugeyes where it hurts.

GWYLRY'S DEATH AN INSIDE JOB

Last quartile we ran a section detailing that Colonel Gwylry of the 23rd Denubian Regiment did not die in a transport accident as officially reported, and thsy he might have been killed in action by the Kroot near the three newly opened mines. New information has surfaced that leads us to believe that he might have been assassinated, not by some Imperial Resistance cell, but by the Regency itself! We still believe that he was sent up to lead the 23rd during the opening of the new mines, and he was near Heztown when he died. However, we now believe that when Gwylry learned that the new mines were not reclaimed land but in Kroot territory, he refused. He and his senior staff might have mutinied, intending to either withdraw the regiment or even break against the Regency. The Colonel was no bulge-head, and ever since the Bloody Riots after the First War, has stood for keeping the peace and keeping the citizenry safe. He may have made an ill-fated but understandable compromise when he stood down during the Omdurand uprising, but he was a true hero of Danubis. RIP.

EX-CLAIM Hits Excrement

The Regent s expend and reclaim initiative intended to destroy the abandoned eastern wharfs of Minehead City to build pipelines for Blue Horizon s offshore rigs has literally run into shit. Several thousand tuns of excrement, in fact! The excavation servitors and bulk excavators hit a sewage main serving four eastern districts. Not only has this stalled the expansion work but has several utility guilds up in arms against the botched reclamation efforts. That s egg, or is that shit, on your face Omdurand!

Beware! Kroot Sightings More Frequent!

There are increasing reports of Kroot activity all along the Wire. From missing lone prospectors to raids on settlements, the Kroot are growing restless lately.

TWO COLLABORATORS GUNNED DOWN IN KANTON

Pax Magistrate Mattas and his assistant Mlle Suxian of the Kanton regional council, vocal supporters of Omdurand, were gunned down in Kanton around 17:00 standard 255 998 as they left their office. The paramedicae who arrived shortly, pronounced both dead at the scene. SecCom were called in to investigate, but no suspects were apprehended. Eyewitness accounts differed. Some claimed a pair of young women on pedal radhs shot the pair, while others say they saw a lone shooter with a long gun up on the abandoned Central Archives building. So far, no resistance group has claimed credit. And it might even be disgruntled mudders who have every motive to remove the pair based on how they ran Kanton into the ground recently. SecCom is still scrambling for possible culprits. So, to our comrades in Kanton, stay safely out of their way!

The Numbers this cycle: 7.4.9

As always, Keep Fighting! The Emperor Protects Those Who Protect Themselves!